With WalkMe Discovery, you get full visibility into the real inefficiencies in your software stack. Take immediate action to consolidate redundant tools, control license costs, or improve ROI using the leading platform purpose-built to drive software adoption.
Software budgets are under pressure like never before.

Excessive software spending has resulted in enterprise tech sprawl. Large enterprises are unaware of a staggering 51% of the applications deployed in their companies. This complex and often unmanageable environment has led to overlapping functionalities and an inefficient use of resources. And without a comprehensive view of your software at every level within your enterprise, you’ll never be able to optimize effectively.

The average company with over 10K employees wastes $16M per year on software that isn’t used.
