

Unreimbursed Expenses Survey

WalkMe Survey Shows Half of Workers Don't File Expense Reports, Leaving Billions of Dollars on the Table

A recent survey revealed that 50% of workers worldwide are not filing expense reports, leaving billions of dollars unclaimed. Around the world, the average amount left behind is $26.25, causing job stress for 48% of respondents and negatively impacting the financial situation of 28% during the holiday season. The main reasons for not filing expense reports include time-consuming paperwork and cumbersome reimbursement processes. These findings are concerning as 63% of workers cannot afford a $500 emergency expense, relying on employers for additional support. Simplifying the expense reporting process is crucial for compliance, budgeting, accountability, and enhancing employee experience, reducing dissatisfaction and work stress. Digital Adoption Platforms like WalkMe offer solutions to streamline expense reporting and improve both the employee and employer experience.
